Multiculturalisme veronderstelt, veelal impliciet, een bepaald mensbeeld en een bepaalde sociale filosofie. De kern daarvan is dat er een sterke relatie bestaat tussen sociale erkenning en persoonsidentiteit. In deze studie wordt vanuit een sociaal-filosofische invalshoek onderzocht hoe deze relatie begrepen kan worden en wat de normatieve en existentiële consequenties daarvan zijn. Iemand's gevoel van eigenwaarde komt niet in sociale isolatie tot stand, maar hangt af van relaties met anderen. Miskennis kan daarom diep ingrijpen in iemands zelfbegrip. Vanuit dit besef kan men concluderen dat gelijke erkenning een morele plicht is. Maar een cruciale spanning in het multiculturalisme ontstaat doordat een bepaalde erkenningsvorm niet vatbaar is voor een dergelijke morele oproep, namelijk 'waardering'. Een positief oordeel is niet afdwingbaar. De auteur toont echter aan dat erkenning van cultureel verschil ook formeel kan zijn, ofwel onafhankelijk van inhoudelijke waardering. Hiervoor is een ruime invulling van de notie 'respect' vereist. Respect betekent niet alleen de erkenning van gelijke persoonlijke vrijheid, maar ook van culturele bindingen. Alleen zo wordt een volwaardig zelfrespect mogelijk voor ale burgers.

El archipiélago de las Galápagos, catalogado como «patrimonio natural de la humanidad», alberga un parque nacional prestigioso que cuenta con ayuda internacional considerable. Destinado a facilitar las investigaciones naturalistas y en principio a servir de modelo para nuevas formas de valorización turística más respetuosas del entorno (ecoturismo), este parque es hoy en día objeto de muchas críticas. El desarrollo de las redes turísticas y migratorias ha acelerado la conexión del archipiélago al territorio ecuatoriano y al mercado mundial. La naturaleza «protegida» se ha convertido en un espacio sometido a las exigencias de rentabilidad de un mundo caracterizado por la mercantilización y la uniformización de los lugares. Esta «conservación contra natura» tiene consecuencias catastróficas para los ecosistemas y los habitantes del archipiélago. Más allá del estudio de una región emblemática, el autor hace una reflexión sobre el sitio del hombre en la naturaleza, verdadero alegato en favor de la preservación de la geodiversidad. Su obra innovadora y estimulante se dirige a todos los actores preocupados por el porvenir de nuestro planeta. Esta edición en español ha sido enriquecida con un epílogo escrito por el autor diez años más tarde, después de dos nuevas misiones en las islas en 2001 y 2005.

Fat: such a little word evokes big responses. While 'fat' describes the size and shape of bodies, our negative reactions to corpulent bodies also depend on something tangible and tactile; as this book argues, there is more to fat than meets the eye. Fat: A Cultural History of the Stuff of Life offers a historical reflection on how fat has been perceived and imagined in the West since antiquity. Featuring fascinating historical accounts, philosophical, religious and cultural arguments, including discussions of status, gender and race, the book digs deep into the past for the roots of our current notions and prejudices. Three central themes emerge: how we have perceived and imagined obesity over the centuries; how fat as a substance has elicited disgust and how it evokes perceptions of animality; but also how it has been associated with vitality and fertility. By exploring the complex ways in which fat, fatness and fattening have been perceived over time, this book provides rich insights into the stuff our stereotypes are made of.

Este libro presenta de forma clara y rigurosa las principales características de la sociología de la comunicación. Se explican los orígenes de la sociología como disciplina de conocimiento, se exponen los distintos paradigmas teóricos de la disciplina y se señalan algunas de las aportaciones recientes más significativas. Para nosotros la noción de "red social", de

"sociedad del riesgo" o de "sociedad líquida" son cruciales para captar la naturaleza de la sociedad contemporánea.

También se recogen las principales aportaciones realizadas por la investigación en comunicación social.

Hemos tratado algunos ámbitos de conocimiento más relevantes como son, por ejemplo, el campo de la comunicación política y la opinión pública. Hemos estudiado también el tema de los estilos de vida y la teoría del gusto; las culturas juveniles, la cultura fan y las nuevas formas de participación y creatividad cultural.

This book examines the acquisition of requests in English by a seven-year-old Japanese girl during her 17-month residence in Australia. The study focuses on the linguistic repertoire available to the child as she attempts to make requests and vary these to suit different goals and addressees. This book helps unravel features of pragmatic development in the child's interlanguage, a subject about which we yet know very little.

This collection of essays serves as a forum for a broad spectrum of responses to the war-time writing of Paul de Man, responses rarely in agreement and often sharply contradictory, differing in approach, affect, and style.

Responses engages in reading de Man's early articles, in articulating their multiple contexts, then and now, and in opening the limitations imposed by rubrics like

“the case of Paul de Man” and “deconstruction politics.” Responses brings together the readings and commentaries of literary critics and historians from the United States and Europe, with their diverse strategies—historical, rhetorical, psychological, political. The primary aims of these essays are reading de Man’s texts, from 1940 to 1983, and assessing them in their political, ideological, and institutional fields. Responses also provides essential historical materials—letters, documents, personal recollections—on Le Soir and Het Vlaamsche Land, on the occupation of Belgium, and on the biography of Paul de Man. An appendix collects the recent reactions of newspapers in the United States and Europe (France, Germany, Switzerland, Sweden, Belgium, and elsewhere) to the discovery of de Man’s wartime writings. Contributors include Yves Bonnefoy, Cynthia Chase, Else de Bens, Ortwin de Graef, Jacques Derrida, Rodolphe Gasche, Gerald Graff, Barbara Johnson, Jeffrey Mehlman, J. Hillis Miller, Edward Said, Marc Shell, Gayatri Spivak, and others. The collection appears under the auspices of the Oxford Literary Review, England’s leading theoretical journal for over a decade.

This book explores changes in security governance in Europe from the 1990s, focusing on some of the most important consequences: the proliferation of ignored insecurities, including the increase of oncological diseases, environmental disasters, shadow economies reproducing neo-slavery and fiscal fraud, and the general damage to the res publica. What is the articulation of removal, reclamation and consequently the implementation of devices and the establishing of prevention practices? Why are the majority of victims and also the control agency professionals seemingly resigned to these ignored insecurities? Following more than 20 years of research in the area, the authors examine these questions and how the securitisation of society has been exacerbated. They argue that the primary cause of the increase in ignored insecurities is the consequence of the neoliberal turn in security governance. This book proposes an innovative approach to security governance, not only through a serious analysis of the balance of the costs and benefits, but also highlighting what is here termed 'ignored insecurities'. The authors propose a review of the problems, showing that the governance of security is a crucial element of the contemporary political organisation of society. The book ends with an innovative reflection on the Anthropocene debate and the COP21 summit which took place in Paris in December 2015.

A Common Good Approach to Development SAGE

"Au cours des vingt dernières années, les sciences sociales se sont largement internationalisées. Elles sont enseignées partout ou presque. Les résultats de leurs recherches sont largement disséminés. Une forte demande pour une expertise en sciences sociales est exprimée tant par les décideurs et les médias que par le grand public ; les concepts et les théories des sciences sociales influent plus que jamais sur l'opinion publique et sont présents dans les débats. Toutefois des disparités dans la production et l'utilisation des savoirs limitent la capacité des scientifiques à comprendre comment différentes sociétés fonctionnent et évoluent. Ces divisions empêchent de fournir aux décideurs et à la société les savoirs dont ils ont besoin pour faire face aux grands enjeux contemporains. La pauvreté, les inégalités et le changement climatique sont autant de problèmes auxquels les sciences sociales doivent apporter des éléments de réponse. Plus et de meilleures sciences sociales sont requises. Pour ce faire, des capacités en sciences sociales doivent être développées, particulièrement dans les régions où les problèmes sociaux sont les plus aigus et les systèmes de recherche les plus faibles.

The forest foragers of the Congo Basin, known collectively as "Pygmies," are the largest and most diverse group of active hunter-gatherers remaining in the world. At least fifteen different ethnolinguistic groups exist in the Congo Basin with a total population of 250,000 to 350,000 individuals. Extensive knowledge about these groups has accumulated in the last forty years, but readers have been forced to piece together what is known from many sources. French, Japanese, American, and British researchers have conducted the majority of the research; each national research group has its own academic traditions, history, and publications. Here, leading academic authorities from diverse national traditions summarize recent research on forest hunter-gatherers. The volume explores the diversity and uniformity of Congo Basin hunter-gatherer life by providing detailed but accessible overviews of recent research. It represents the first book in over twenty-five years to provide a comprehensive and holistic overview of African forest hunter-gatherers. Chapters discuss the cultural variation in characteristic features of Congo Basin hunter-gatherer life, such as their yodeled polyphonic music, pronounced egalitarianism, multiple-child caregiving, and complex relations with neighboring farming groups. Other contributors address theoretical issues, such as why Pygmies are short, how tropical forest hunter-gatherers live without the carbohydrates they receive from neighboring farmers, and how hunter-gatherer children learn to share so extensively.

This book rethinks the key concepts of International Relations by drawing on the work of Pierre Bourdieu. The last few years have seen a genuine wave of publications promoting sociology in international relations. Scholars have suggested that Bourdieu's vocabulary can be applied to study security, diplomacy, migration and global environmental politics. Yet we still lack a systematic and accessible analysis of what Bourdieu-inspired IR might look like. This book provides the answer. It offers an introduction to Bourdieu's thinking to a wider IR audience, challenges key assumptions, which currently structure IR scholarship - and provides an original, theoretical restatement of some of the core concepts in the field. The book brings together a select group of leading IR scholars who draw on both theoretical and empirical insights from Bourdieu. Each chapter covers one central concept in IR: Methodology, Knowledge, Power, Strategy, Security, Culture, Gender, Norms, Sovereignty and Integration. The chapters demonstrate how these concepts can be reinterpreted and used in new ways when exposed to Bourdieusian logic. Challenging key pillars of IR scholarship, Bourdieu in International Relations will be of interest to critical theorists, and scholars of IR theory.

The period 1300-1600 CE was one of intense and far-reaching emotional realignments in European culture. New desires and developments in politics, religion, philosophy, the arts and literature fundamentally changed emotional attitudes to history, creating the sense of a rupture from the immediate past. In this volatile context, cultural products of all kinds offered competing objects of love, hate, hope and fear. Art, music, dance and song provided new models of family affection, interpersonal intimacy, relationship with God, and gender and national identities. The public and private spaces of courts, cities and houses shaped the practices and rituals in which emotional lives were expressed and understood. Scientific and medical discoveries changed emotional relations to the cosmos, the natural world and the body. Both continuing traditions and new sources of cultural authority made emotions central to the concept of human nature, and involved them in every aspect of existence.

This book examines the role of religious actors in the field of climate change and especially in the international mobilization and negotiations to address the issue. It analyzes the mode of action and their discourses on multilateral platforms such as the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC). The international Climate Change Framework Convention is primarily a process that can best be understood by analyzing the various steps taken by the international community, and specifically by different religious groupings, here, in the project manuscript, mainly Christians but also Muslims and Buddhists, in raising environmental consciousness through their programs. The interfaith dimension also plays a major role and needs to be studied in terms of the international realm of international liberal theories based on reciprocity, interdependence and cooperation but also within the framework of Sustainable Development Goals. Encountering the Sacred Routledge

To take Africa from the edge to the centre of the global economy, it is critical to engage African voices in policy discussions on the global political economy. With Africa's projected economic importance in the future and South Africa's prominent role in the G-20 and BRICS, it is vital that this part of the world is involved in restructuring the rules and principles of international economic law. This book examines themes dealing with cross border trade, investment, development and finance issues. Incontri etnografici Archaeopress Publishing Ltd

This edited collection proposes a common good approach to development theory and practice. Rather than focusing on the outcomes or conditions of development, the contributors concentrate on the quality of development processes, suggesting that a common good dynamic is key in order to trigger development. Resulting from more than three years of research by an international group of over fifty scholars, the volume advocates for a modern understanding of the common good—rather than a theological or metaphysical good—in societies by emphasising the social practice of 'commoning' at its core. It suggests that the dynamic equilibrium of common goods in a society should be at the centre of development efforts. For this purpose, it develops a matrix of common good dynamics, accounting for how institutions, social norms and common practices interconnect by identifying five key drivers not only of development, but human development (agency, governance, justice, stability, humanity). Based on this matrix, the contributors suggest a possible metric for measuring the quality of these dynamics. The last section of the book highlights the possibilities enabled by this approach through a series of case studies. The concept of the common good has recently enjoyed a revival and inspired practitioners keen to look beyond the shortcomings of political and economic liberalism. This book builds on those efforts to think beyond the agenda of twentieth-century development policies, and will be of interest to those working in the fields of development, economics, sociology, philosophy and political science.

What should you do when you have restricted resources? Written by the most prominent experts from the North and the South countries, this book offers a unique complement to classical hematology and oncology textbooks focusing on specific issues concerning cancers in tropical areas. It presents a thorough review of the specific biological, clinical and therapeutic characteristics of cancers in tropical areas, including their background and epidemiology, public health consequences and transcultural mediation. As such, it will be a valuable resource for all hemato-oncology practitioners, students of oncology or tropical medicine, and other physicians involved in the care of cancer patients who live in tropical countries.
