Author Cyprian Fernandes was born a war baby in 1943 in Kenya. Forced to leave school at the age of thirteen because he would not drop his pants for a caning, Fernandes experienced a wild and epic childhood. In Yesterday in Paradise, he tells his story growing up in colonial British East Africa. With a history of the region and the people originating from the state of Goa, India, and the Republic of Kenya, East Africa, woven in, Fernandes shares a host of stories that became a part of his first twenty-plus years. He was in the middle of the bloodcurdling Mau Mau rebellion and was arrested with thousands of others. He was there when Pio Gama Pinto was murdered. He embarked on an adventure that eventually took him to the four corners of the Earth. He travelled the length and breadth of Africa, the United Kingdom, and Europe as an investigative reporter. Providing a look at Fernandes eventful past, Yesterday in Paradise narrates a memoir filled with prejudice, murder, conflict, and more. He shares the events, the people, and the many, many places that fashioned his life.

Hockey is far too deeply ingrained in the national psyche of Canada to be dismissed as merely a game. It is a passion. It flows in our blood and inhabits our language, our dreams, our landscape, and our history. [i Time of the Last Goal] is Bruce Meyer's examination of his relation to the game of hockey, a tradition that has been passed down to him through his family, his birth city of Toronto, and his love of literature. At the core of the way we perceive the sport in this country is the strange question we will inevitably have to face someday: why is tragedy absent from Canadian literature? In this testament to hope, poetic justice, and the annual raising of the grail, Meyer examines the core concepts that are the love and lifeblood of a nation. Hockey's Greatest Game-Winning Goals and Other Crunch-Time Heroics Sura Books

This book is a level 2 Urdu reader. Level 2 books helps in developing Urdu vocabulary for people who have become familiar with Urdu script and have learnt a few basic words. The book does it by means of interesting short stories. This book contains six stories. Each story consists of small paragraphs with a simple but interesting story line. Each paragraph is 1 or 2 lines to make it easy to follow. On each page of the book, the top paragraph provides the narrative in Urdu. Immediately below it is the transliteration of the paragraph in English. If the transliterated paragraph is read in conversational English, the pronunciation would be similar to the one in Urdu. The paragraph at the bottom of the page provides the English translation. In this book, the reader acquires increased familiarity with Urdu while having fun following Tara, the heroine of the stories, through her adventures.

The book is a sarcastic play on life and doesn't just come across as favouring one particular genre, including love, pathos, and tragedy, with other elements that make it a great emotional adventure. The plot is taken from a much loved mediaeval story and is a tale of righteousness over evil, triumph over adversity and, as always, the reader is left wondering whether the boy will get the girl. The beautiful illustrations in this book (East meeting the West) round out the storyline to make for a memorable and most entertaining reading experience.
