Asuka Higuchi, qui vient de perdre sa mère, suit les dernières volontés de celle-ci et part à la recherche de son père pour que celui-ci la reconnaisse comme son enfant mais elle finit par s'installer dans la même maison que ses demi-frères qui n'ont jamais vu leur père non plus, en attendant de le retrouver. Confusions sans fin s'ensuivent, en particulier à cause d'une petite soeur qui n'accepte pas la nouvelle arrivée, d'un demifrère qui s'avère ne pas être son frère de sang (et de qui elle tombe amoureuse), des bagarres entre voyous à l'école (dont elle devient le chef), etc. Collection intégrale et universelle des orateurs sacrés du premier et du second ordre UNESCO Publishing
In this ambitious and venturesome book, Peter W. Rose applies the insights of Marxist theory to a number of central Greek literary and philosophical texts. He explores major points in the trajectory from Homer to Plato where the ideology of inherited excellence—beliefs about descent from gods or heroes—is elaborated and challenged. Rose offers subtle and penetrating new readings of Homer's Iliad and Odyssey, Pindar's Tenth Pythian Ode, Aeschylus's Oresteia, Sophokles' Philoktetes, and Plato's Republic. Rose rejects the view of art as a mere reflection of social and political reality—a view that is characteristic not only of most Marxist but of most historically oriented treatments of classical literature. He applies instead a Marxian hermeneutic derived from the work of the Frankfurt School and Fredric Jameson. His readings focus on illuminating a politics of form within the text, while responding to historically specific social, political, and economic realities. Each work, he asserts, both reflects contemporary conflicts over wealth, power, and gender roles and constitutes an attempt to transcend the status quo by projecting an ideal community. Following Marx, Rose maintains that critical engagement with the limitations of the utopian dreams of the past is the only means to the realization of freedom in the present. Classicists and their students, literary theorists, philosophers, comparatists, and Marxist critics will find Sons of the Gods, Children of Earth challenging reading.

The analysis of UNESCO's audio-visual archives for their digitization has brought to light a forgotten album of thirty eight contact sheets and accompanying texts by Magnum photographer David "Chim" Seymour - a reportage commissioned by UNESCO in 1950 on the fight against illiteracy in southern Italy's Calabria region. A number of Seymour's photographs appeared in the March 1952 issue of the UNESCO Courier, accompanied by an article written by Carlo Levi, who gained worldwide fame with his 1945 memoir, Christ Stopped at Eboli.

A classic of modern French literature, the thrilling real-life story of the military hero, ambassador, ladies man, writer, and loving son I grew up longing for the day when I could tear down the veil of darkness and absurdity concealing the true face of the universe and discover at last a smile of kindness and wisdom; I grew up in the certitude that one day I should help my fellow men to wrest the world from our enemies and give back the earth to those who ennoble it with their courage and warm it with their love. Promise at Dawn begins as the story of a mother's sacrifice: alone and poor, she fights fiercely to give her son the very best. Romain Gary chronicles his childhood in Russia, Poland, and on the French Riviera; he recounts his adventurous life as a young man fighting for France in World War II. But above all he tells the story of the love for his mother that was his very life—their secret and private planet, their wonderland “born out of a mother’s murmur into a child’s ear, a promise whispered at dawn of future triumphs and greatness, of justice and love.”
