Last of an Emotion

Routledge

The greatest fear known to man is not the fear of receiving something dreadful, but of losing something beautiful. The Lost Sunset is not just a Love story, it's a story about Love, told by three unlikely narrators, all of which must be discovered by the reader. The book tells the story of a man named James and a girl named Destiny, using them both as tools to illustrate the philosophies of Love and life. When James and Destiny meet, it seems as though both will finally find what they had each been looking for; but because of James's past, and Destiny's present, circumstance becomes very circumstantial. Tragedy will also befriend James, changing his life forever. It's only through his interaction with a very mysterious girl that James is able to break out of his confused state. It is only with her, that we will see if James is able to let go of the past, accept the present, and build his future. The only question is whether or not any part of that will include

Destiny.

Love Lost, Life Found IAP
**Instant Sunday Times Bestseller** Bracing honesty, rare insight, and more revelations: the New York Times bestselling author of Lady in Waiting shares everything she's learned from her extraordinary and unexpected life. Lady in Waiting brought us royal magic, beguiling insight, and jaw-dropping stories from life inside Anne Glenconner's privileged circle, which though golden didn't always glitter. As she revealed in her memoir, it has been one of stark contrasts—from growing up in the splendor of Holkham Hall to living in a tent in the jungle of Mustique, from traveling the world with Princess Margaret to coping with her wildly unpredictable husband Lord Glenconner. She has also survived the tragic loss of two of her sons and nursed a third son back from a coma. Now in her ninth decade and at her happiest, she's keen to share everything her unexpected life has taught her—the wise, the hilarious, the poignant, and the illuminating. As a wife, she became a master in the art of keeping the peace, knowing when to pick her battles, when she needed help—and when to take a lover. As a hostess, she acquired great practical skills in throwing marvelous parties and looking after magnificent homes, and, as a lady in waiting, became well versed in diplomacy and etiquette. It was as a mother she learnt the toughest lessons of all, and through them the value of friendship, family, and laughter to get her through the worst moments in life, as well as celebrate the best of them. Whatever Next? is a treasury of hard-won wisdom, and richly entertaining proof that staying open to every new adventure sets an inspiring example for us all. Catalog of Copyright Entries HarperCollins UK "I spent the beginning of my life thinking there was something wrong with me, that I was missing something, and always looking for love any and everywhere I went. Along the way I got lost... lost in what the world says is happiness. As I took a step back and gathered myself together.. I learned to love everything about me. I am not perfect, and that is a beautiful thing. I made a lot of wonderful mistakes and found many ways of what doesn't work for me. I'm still learning and growing as I have reached the beginning of the middle of my life. I have made some amazing connections and have some amazing friends that I have created memories that will live beyond me. Although I started my journey in search of love... I now walk my journey loving everything about me, loving the people I have close to me, loving my worth, working hard to fulfill every single one of my dreams, and leaving a lot of love.. any and everywhere I go. I hope that by sharing my story, you too can feel understood, cared for, and heard. Sending love your way." - Oscar G. Why Self-love is The Key to True Love: A True Story of Love, Passion, Heartache, Loss, Self-discovery, and the Lessons Learned Along the Way. WS Publishing Group

It is a story of Tareque who was suffering from a mysterious disease called "no-sympathy". Hoping to find a cure of it he studied psychology and did a doctorate thesis on "Love" from Asmara University, Eritrea. He took interviews of many lovers and did analysis on their feelings. He met with book-worm Oriana and on a longest night of his life, shared his thoughts with her. He believed on "Just God" based religion. He challenges traditional method of love, marriage and family. He has proposed TSWIP("Think Situation When In Past") and AHOF("Accept Hate Or Forget Past") methods to resolve the never-ending hate and war situation between two groups. He raised many questions, suggested many solutions but what was the message finally he learned or realized? The book also has a love-chart from his original thesis paper that calculates the level of happiness a couple may expect.

The author grew up in Mahe, the largest island of the Seychelles archipelago, separated from Africa, the nearest continent, by a thousand miles of ocean. Life in this small British colony was as close as one could come on Earth to life on a separate planet. The outside world did little to engage the minds of a population that was largely self-sufficient, that found enough of interest in its own communal life, and that normally spoke French or the local Creole patois. The rhythm of daily life still followed the pattern established in the eighteenth century by the French settlers who colonised the islands. The isolation of this little world was ended with the opening of the international airport in 1974, followed shortly by independence, tourists, and many changes. The Seychelles of Lise's youth has gone. Even without its gripping story of love and loss, passion and tragedy, this novel would stand as a unique record of that vanished place and time. Hermeneutics - Ethics - Education Notion Press

For every young person's life, college is all about embarking on being independent and learning new everyday lessons. But, for these four young women, they get more than they bargain for during one semester at Shaw University. Riana Robertson has always been vocal on her opinions and stood up for what she believed in. She thought she was living the perpetual life by having the perfect boyfriend, but she never imagined that her boyfriend has been living a lie for quite some time. When another man comes into her life, she has to make a choice on who she should be with: her boyfriend or the guy that has caught her attention in more ways than one. Britney Lewis has always been loyal to her friends, especially her best friend, Riana. While Ri and her cousin, Cheryl, are on vacation during the summer, Britney has been doing the unthinkable with the person closest to Riana. Will she be able to tell Riana the truth about her misdeeds, or will she continue living a lie? Cheryl Thompson has been through a lot in her young age, but that hasn't stopped her from striving for new goals. With meeting a new man and gaining a new found confidence within herself, will she finally be able to live the life she always dreamed of? Monica Taylor is the wildest one of the bunch and usually reacts before thinking.

When she gets tangled up in a crazy situation, will she be able to get it out it, or will it destroy her life? Take a journey with Riana, Britney, Cheryl, and Monica, as they experience life and love during their sophomore year in college in part one of Love, Life, and Happiness: The Lost Story. This story is the original version of the indie series; Love, Life, and Happiness.

The Lost Sunset Arnaud van der Veere Dianna and Steve were roaring through life, in love, happy, and intent on having a family along the way. The story that unfolds and changes their lives forever, seemingly by chance, is a reminder to us all that amazing things can happen if you listen to your heart. The joy of finally finding their son, the complex emotions of adoptive parents and birth families, and the deep sorrow of the blows that stole their happiness can be understood by each and every person who has loved and lost, as can the belief that happiness is cyclical, as is life.

About the Book: Prateek Shrivastav unearths the happiness that we left behind in our small towns and villages through his book, Devri. His assortment of short stories from the fictitious hill town of Devri and its adjoining areas revives forgotten peace and simplicity. The characters and incidents in Devri can be related to any small town across India.

Whether it is a small girl dreaming of a doll, two strangers finding love in unlikely settings, a panchayat clerk yearning for a happy retired life, or a young girl making her mark in a village, these stories are about the real stars, the unspoken celebrities like you and me. Sit back, hit a pause, unwind, and explore Devri, re-discovering yourself in the process. About the Author: Prateek Shrivastav is an innovator, technologist, and evangelist. But his passion lies in storytelling, in observing life and narrating the various shades of it through his own experiences. As the father of a child with special needs, a large part of his life has been a rollercoaster of emotions and balancing of priorities. His search for harmony in the chaotic events has led him to re-discover happiness in the small nuggets of everyday life. Prateek's book, Devri, excavates the same soulful happiness and peace in the fictitious yet familiar town of Devri. Prateek has tried to create a small world of Devri and neighbouring towns and villages in his stories, where he hopes his readers can relive their memories and unearth their happiness.

How to Survive the Loss of a Love AuthorHouse

Are you lost in your relationship? Or Are you looking for love, true love? Maybe you have settled for "good enough" because you think you can't ask for more from love? You can't seem to rekindle the passion or you've suffered from a broken heart or trauma that made you close off your heart to protect it. You might be searching for that elusive special someone but you're unsure what to do or you don't have the confidence to try? If you answered yes to any of that this book is for you. Inside relationship expert, author and coach Melody Chadamoyo shares her own love story, a story of love, passion, heartache, loss, self-discovery, and the lessons she's learned along the way. You'll discover how to apply these lessons in a step by step way and how you can apply them to not only find lasting love, true love but also in a way that enables you to love the most important person in your life - yourself. Split into 4 easy parts: In Part 1 Melody shares her story of why love is not enough to make a marriage last. After marrying the man of her dreams 2 years later she was extremely unhappy in her and seriously thinking about divorce. She blamed her husband for her unhappiness but he wouldn't or couldn't change. She decided to take responsibility for her own happiness. She joined the gym, started meeting up with friends and dancing as well as going back to reading. She discovered that she had lost herself and had no idea what to do as a wife that would not make her and her husband miserable. Her realization that men and women don't see the world the same way started her on a path to learn how to have relationships with men that make them feel more intimacy and her more valued. In Part 2 the book goes deeper into the importance of practicing self-love. You can't give what you don't have so before you expect love from others need to grow in loving yourself and then share with others. What is the self and how do you ensure you love yourself? There are examples that show you some of the actions that show you're not loving yourself and when you are. Self-love means loving even the bits about you that you don't like. Loving yourself is the step towards acceptance of yourself and others. It leads to unconditional love. Part 3 shows the difference between the traditional conditional love we have been taught and the real authentic true love. Love is what makes life worthwhile. It is also a choice. Loving consciously and accepting a person for who they are is practicing true love. You need to let go of the need to control others to allow them to be whom they are meant to be. Melody shares practical ways of how you can begin to do that. Part 4 helps you take self-love and true love and marry them to create blissful and amazing relationships. You get the tools to use to build your relationships so that they thrive and full of joy.

The Lost Guide to Life and Love Hachette Books

In this sumptuous novel, Barbara O'Neal offers readers a celebration of food, family, and love as a woman searches for the elusive ingredient we're all hoping to find. . . . It's the opportunity Elena Alvarez has been waiting for—the challenge of running her own kitchen in a world-class restaurant. Haunted by an accident of which she was the lone survivor, Elena knows better than anyone how to survive the odds. With her faithful dog, Alvin, and her grandmother's recipes, Elena arrives in Colorado to find a restaurant in as desperate need of a fresh start as she is—and a man whose passionate approach to food and life rivals her own. Owner Julian Liswood is a name many people know but a man few do. He's come to Aspen with a troubled teenage daughter and a dream of the kind of stability and love only a family can provide. But for Elena, old ghosts don't die quietly, yet a chance to find happiness at last is worth the risk.

Slow Love Hyperion Books
Why squander our life – the only one we have – in a permanent state of want and anxiety when we can live a life of abundance and bliss? Why make our happiness depend on externalities when the only truly lasting happiness is inside each one of us? Why sacrifice the happiness we could be enjoying today on the altar of a vague promise of future bliss when we already have everything we need to be happy in the present? In this work, the author shows us how to overcome the two main obstacles to happiness: attachment and anxiety. Readers will see that detachment and the ability to stop worrying are neither gifts of the chosen, nor inborn talents reserved for a few, but skills that can be learned at any moment in life, regardless of our situation. In the first part, we'll focus on attachment to objects and people. We'll see how attachment inevitably leads to fear, and that fear is incompatible with happiness. We'll examine the role of craving and desire, of want and satisfaction, of control and freedom, of possessions and love – and we'll see that precious little is needed to live a happy life. In the second part, we'll delve into what is probably the main cause of unhappiness: anxiety. We'll see that most of the worry that taints our happiness is unjustified because it stems from adversities that only exist in our mind. To understand this reasoning, we'll analyze how we create all our expectations and fears in the present, how we project them into a future that is no less a product of our own imagination, and how we then await with apprehension the arrival of that future in which we have placed our hopes and misgivings. Happiness is not an unattainable dream, not even a future goal we're doomed to pursue forever in vain, but a natural, innate gift we've all been endowed with. We have now, and always have had, all the happiness we'll ever have, but we don't allow it to bloom in our lives because we've unconsciously buried it under an ever-thickening layer of impediments that prevent it from manifesting every day of our life. This book is here to help you find your happiness, but to do so it has to challenge many of the received ideas and dogmas that for centuries have condemned humanity to unhappiness. Please read it with an open mind, and consider with fairness whether the ideas contained herein make any sense for you. When doing so, be honest with yourself and don't let other people's opinions influence your conclusions. Remember that ultimately you are your only judge, and that on your deathbed the opinions other people may have about you will not change the verdict of your conscience about how you lived your own life. Your happiness is in your own hands, and nowhere else, for only you can make it real. Let this book help you drop the ballast of your worries and attachments and glide smoothly through life! The solution is inside: discover it and let the magic happen! Don't wait until it's too late: it's now or never!

The meaning of my writing is to decorate the heart of my friend readers with beautiful moments of life-LOVE, hope, happiness, psychology, and smile. You are my inspiration. You reflect me to sweeten my mind in order to write beautifully for life and for you with LOVE. I wish the poems will touch your souls as you read them and feel the height of psychology. The poems are life, enjoyment, and energy-but above all, LOVE, the most important part in our lives. LOVE is the best painkiller of the soul and the greatest happiness of hearts that offers daily the beauty in life, the goodness, and the respect for all the beautiful who give value, liveliness, and LOVE in our lives. If LOVE is the unique daylight in your soul, you have succeeded in equilibrating your spiritual world. The dreams are a great deal in our lives, such as our hearts, decorating the divine nature with perfumes, which come out of the beauty of the soul in the beautiful gift God has offered us to live in his paradise. Life is the gift of God before the eternity. I like to live, not only to exist. A great deal of thanks and LOVE you indicate in the poems and the beautiful daily offering in your life. My friends your LOVE crown in your life. Happiness, care, and loving care will live in your souls. The life is looking for you when you beautify your world. - Soulis

Furthermore the existential component of schizophrenia is analysed. The set of notes is 80 pages long and easy to read and understand. The theory is founded on the philosophy of Scottish psychiatrist RD Laing. This is the second edition of these notes.

Love Life is a Friend

Chronicle Books

With the dawn of research into leader-behaviors, scholars differentiated between being task-oriented, which is important, and also being people-oriented. People matter. And we tend to guard against leader attitudes that treat persons as objects, as passive or inert, as instruments, as so much clay to be shaped and molded. Hannah Arendt (1958) rejected the idea that leadership is like work, in which a craftsman picks up the raw materials and the requisite tools in order to create a product according to an image in his head. No, she said, leadership is social action in which we all participate, each with his or her unique and creative spontaneity, collaborating in an erratic cascade toward the future.

Leadership is something people do together. And to achieve that vision, we must acknowledge each other as persons and not as figures in a ledger or pieces on a chessboard. This volume is intended as a call to be curious about what we take for granted as individuals, educators, and leaders. In essence to ask ourselves the more difficult questions about who we are as we recognize our need for others within a community? What does it mean to be a person and to recognize another's personhood? Nathan Harter (2021) draws us into a space to dialogue with ourselves about the notion of personhood as leaders. "So, what does it mean to be a person? And what does it mean to treat someone as a person? What does anyone owe another person?" (p. 4). In what way then do leaders contend with such questions as they are becoming; becoming better leaders, becoming better individuals, becoming their sacred selves. A person-centered ethic would be universal in scope, yet adapted to local conditions that many leaders must deal with on a daily basis. Nearly every religion already addresses both what it means to become a person and what one owes a person ethically, regardless of race, ethnicity, nationality, or other affiliation. Regardless if organizations deal directly with the notion of personhood, leaders deal with the workplace challenges of which the human bring him or her entire self to the unit. Hence, a comprehensive and integrate context forces us to revisit our assumptions about who exactly is a person and what they might deserve. This volume would bring those voices into conversation. In addition, we intend to complicate the question by extending similar questions into emerging areas of increasing relevance in a technological age that crosses geographic boundaries, such as online presences, corporate entities, and the prospects of Artificial Intelligence. If anything, an expanded interdisciplinary and global context makes this volume relevant and timely for leaders and leadership studies across multiple fields of study and professions.
