Like the instant classic The Last American Man, Fearless is the story of a remarkable individual who accepts no personal limits—including fear. Freya Hoffmeister, a forty-six-year-old former sky diver, gymnast, marksman, and Miss Germany contestant, left her twelve-year-old son behind to paddle alone and unsupported around Australia—a year-long adventure that virtually every expert guaranteed would get her killed. She planned not only to survive the 9,420-mile trip through huge, shark-infested seas, but to do it faster than the only other paddler who did it. As journalist and expert kayaker Joe Glickman details the voyage of this Teutonic force of nature, he captures interminable days on the water and nights camped out on deserted islands; hair-raising encounters with crocs and great white sharks; and the daring 300-mile open-ocean crossing that shaved three weeks off her trip. For 332 days Glickman followed Freya's journey on her blog—along with a far-flung audience of awestruck, even lovesick, groupies—as she took on one terrifying ordeal after the next. In the end, he says, “her vanity and pigheadedness paled next to her nearly superhuman ability to master fear and persevere.”

"One of the Australian National Maritime Museum's most spectacular exhibitions is Watermarks - adventure, sport and play. Occupying the 30-metre-high ANZ Tall Gallery, it explores the way in which we use the water for relaxation, for exercise and competition, and in pursuit of personal achievements. One of this exhibitions defining themes, Voyaters, salutes individuals who challenge themselves on the world's oceans and waterways. It's here that we tell the remarkable story of German adventurer, voyager and emigrant Oskar Speck and his 50,000-kilometre odyssey, paddling a kayak from Germany to Australia in the 1930s."--T.p. verso.

Nous sommes dans le crépuscule du monde qui nous a vus naître et vivre et qui va sans doute s'effacer à cause de nos excès et de nos errements. L'heure de la finitude approchant, nous éprouvons le besoin de rechercher, dans le passé, les causalités profondes de nos comportements face aux pressions introduites par de grands événements à incidences mondiales. Il semble ainsi logique d'attribuer, par analogie, ces mêmes causes aux réactions des peuples qui les ont subies dans des conditions analogues aux vôtres, et donc de mieux les comprendre.

Comment appréhender notre passé et envisager notre avenir ? S'attachant à sensibiliser chacun à son rôle d'acteur de son destin et aussi de l'Histoire, cet essai est un voyage à travers le temps peuplé de souvenirs de rencontres, de regards sur le monde et les époques, de réflexions géopolitiques et économiques. De la Seconde Guerre mondiale au défi énergétique du XXIe siècle, en passant par l'immigration et l'éducation, l'auteur nous tend les clefs pour mieux comprendre notre monde.

In December 1965, in a smoke-filled hotel room in Morocco, South African journalist Terry Bell accepted a challenge: to paddle a kayak from London to Tangier. At the time, Terry and his wife Barbara were living as political exiles in London. By August 1967, they agreed it was time to get back to Africa. But they decided to up the ante. Their plan: paddle 11 000 kilometres from England to Dar es Salaam in a 5-metre glass fibre kayak.
