 Anti-Muslim voices have become louder in many places in the midst of ongoing atrocities undertaken in the name of Islam. As a result, much of the creative participation of Western Muslims in the public sphere has become overshadowed. This tendency is not only visible in political discussions and the media landscape, but it is also often reflected in academia where research about Muslims in the West is predominantly shaped by the post 9/11 narrative. In contrast, European Muslims Transforming the Public Sphere offers a paradigm shift. It puts forward a new approach to understanding minority public engagement, suggesting that we need to go beyond conceptualisations that look at Muslims in the West mainly through the minority lens. By bringing into dialogue minority-specific and non-minority specific concepts, the book offers a relevant complement. Using young German Muslims engaged in media, the arts and culture and civil society as ten case studies, this book utilises the concepts of counterpublics and participatory culture to re-examine Muslims' engagement within the European public sphere. It presents a qualitative analysis, which has resulted from two years of ethnographic fieldwork and participant observation, in-depth interviews and primary source analysis of material produced by the research participants. This book is a unique insight into the outworking of multiculturalism in Western Europe. It illustrates the many-sidedness of young Muslims' public contributions, revealing how they transform European public spheres in different ways.

Therefore, it will be a vital resource for any scholar involved in Islamic Studies, the Sociology of Religion, Religious Studies, Cultural Studies and Media Studies.

A town that would become a legend...
DEADWOOD It was a town that defined the frontier. Miners brought gold to it. Outlaws killed to rule it. Lawmen risked their lives to defend it. And women bartered their bodies to survive in it.

DEADWOOD It was a place that brought out the darkness in men's souls. Nobody knew that better than Quint McCannon, who rode into Deadwood one sunny afternoon. But nothing prepared him for what lay ahead in that lawless town in the Black Hills of South Dakota. DEADWOOD It was home to violence and evil...where the elusive killer of three prostitutes still roamed free...and where Quint McCannon was about to discover more than he ever wanted to know about murder, treachery, love—and death. Written by a master storyteller, peopled by such real-life characters as Doc Holliday, Wild Bill Hickok and Calamity Jane, DEADWOOD is a vivid, startling chapter in the history of the great American frontier—the unforgettable story of a man, a town and the people who made the West.

After spending the night at a retreat dedicated to sensual pleasures, a woman finds herself at the center of a murder investigation in this edge-of-your-seat romantic thriller from New York Times–bestselling author Meryl Sawyer. The wolf at the door of Claire Holt's Taos art gallery is Lobo, a dangerous hybrid of German shepherd and timber wolf belonging to Zach Coulter, the town's one-time bad boy. Now, instead of running from the law, he is the law. But the homicide-cop-turned-local-sheriff isn't there to rekindle an old flame. The body of Claire's business rival has been found at the Hideaway, an illicit club where drugs and sex are bartered in the midnight shadows. And Claire's wallet and an incriminating piece of intimate clothing have been discovered in the bungalow next to the crime scene. Claire has no alibi—or memory of that night. Did someone drug her to frame her for murder? Claire enlists Zach's help to find the mysterious stranger who can provide her alibi. In spite of the violent past that binds them, Zach can't refuse her. Now, he and the girl who used to drive him wild might get a second chance—if he can stop a human predator from killing again.
