The Drama of Honoré de Balzacm].

Robert Laffont

Les huit auteurs faisant partie de l'école de Brive (Michel Peyramaure, Claude Michelet, Denis Tillinac, Gilbert Bordes, Yves Voillier, Jean-Guy Soumy, Colette Laussac et Martien Marie Muller) ainsi que leur éditeur, Jacques Peuchmaurd, racontent, chacun à sa manière, leurs rentrées des classes.

Des recueils de nouvelles, l'École de Brive en a déjà publié trois : Rentrées des classes en 1997, L'Or du temps en 1998, Un Jour de bonheur en 1999. Cette année-ci, l'élan nous est venu de l'extérieur. Jean-François Fournel, membre de la rédaction en chef de Pèlerin Magazine, a eu l'idée de demander à chacun des huit auteurs de l'École de Brive d'écrire une nouvelle qui, d'abord publiée dans ce magazine, prendrait place auprès des sept autres pour constituer un petit livre. Nous décidâmes d'un thème général : " la maison ", thème suffisamment large pour que chacun puisse y chanter sa propre chanson, thème profond, consubstantiel en quelque sorte à l'esprit et à la sensibilité de notre groupe. Tout le monde fut d'accord, personne d'entre nous n'ignorant l'attention que, depuis des années, Pèlerin Magazine porte à notre production qui sait toucher particulièrement le vaste public qui est le sien. Le résultat, le voici. Sans perdre de vue " la maison ", chaque nouvelle raconte une véritable histoire où l'invention se donne tous les droits, avec une liberté et un bonheur tout à fait réjouissants... Tout ce que nous aimons.

" Un jour de bonheur ", tel est le thème retenu par les écrivains de l'école de Brive, qui, à travers un recueil de nouvelles, ont, une fois encore, manifesté la cohésion du groupe et le sens de l'amitié qui les unit. Le champ est vaste : le bonheur a mille visages et chacun d'eux est l'occasion de laisser chanter son talent. Souvenir intime ou histoire imaginée, peu importe. Ce qui compte, c'est la voix, et qu'elle sonne juste et qu'elle dise vrai. En quelques pages, chacun de nos amis révèle une part de lui-même que nous ne connaissions pas. Il nous en devient plus proche, plus fraternel. C'est pour nous rendre plus heureux qu'il nous raconte son jour de bonheur.

A physician and spokesman for the French Ideologues, Pierre-Jean Georges Cabanis (1757-1808) stands at the crossroads of several influential developments in modern culture--Enlightenment optimism about human perfectibility, the clinical method in medicine, and the formation and adaptation of liberal social ideals in the French Revolution. This first major study of Cabanis in English traces the influences of these developments on his thought and career. Originally published in 1980. The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions. The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905. Guide du Routard Limousin 2019/20 University of Toronto Press

Voici pour la troisième fois - après Rentrées des classes (1997) et L'Or du temps (1998) - ce recueil de nouvelles qui rassemble, chaque automne, les huit écrivains de l'École de Brive. Pour manifester aux yeux de tous, et d'abord les dizaines et les dizaines de milliers de leurs lecteurs fidèles, la cohésion du groupe et le sens de l'amitié qui les unit. Un jour de bonheur, tel est le thème retenu cette année. Le champ est vaste : le bonheur a mille visages. Aussi bien, ici, chacun chante sa chanson personnelle. Souvenir intime ou histoire imaginée, peu importe. Ce qui compte, c'est la voix, et qu'elle sonne juste et qu'elle dise vrai. En quelques pages, chacun de nos amis révèle une part de lui-même que nous ne connaissions pas. Il nous en devient plus proche, plus fraternel. Un jour de bonheur FeniXX

Un groupe d'écrivains (M. Peyramaure, C. Michelet, D. Tillinac ...) se forma au début des années 80, s'inscrivant dans la lignée des romanciers proches de la terre et de la vie provinciale. Ils prirent le nom de " école de Brive" parce que c'est lors de la Foire du livre de Brive que se manifesta son esprit et sa cohésion. Ce petit livre raconte leur joyeuse aventure.

French Écologie is the first book-length study of the culturally specific ways in which contemporary French literature and theory raise questions about nature and environment. Stephanie Posthumus's ground-breaking work brings together thinkers such as Guattari, Latour, and Serres with recent ecocritical theories to complicate what might otherwise become a reductive notion of "French ecocriticism." Working across contemporary philosophy and literature, the book defines the concept of the ecological as an attentiveness to specific nature-culture contexts and to a text's many interdiscursive connections. Posthumus identifies four key concepts, ecological subjectivity, ecological dwelling, ecological politics, and ecological ends, for changing how we think about human-nature relations. French Écologie highlights the importance of moving beyond canonical ecocritical texts and examining a diversity of cultural and literary traditions for new ways of imagining the environment.

Place and Locality in Modern France analyses the significance and changing constructions of local place in modern France. Drawing on the expertise of a range of scholars from around the world, this book provides a timely overview of the cross-disciplinary thinking that is currently taking place over a central issue in French history. The contributed chapters address a range of subjects that include: the politics of administrative reform, decentralization, regionalism and local advocacy; the role of commerce in engendering narratives and experience of local place; the importance of ethnic, class, gender and race distinctions in shaping local connection and identity; the generation and transmission of knowledge about local place and culture through academia, civic heritage and popular memory. As a reconsideration of the 'local' in French history, Place and Locality in Modern France bridges the divide between micro- and macro-history for all those interested in ideas of locality and culture in modern French and European history.

The International Who's who Oxford University Press

Il y a un an, en octobre 1996, paraissait un petit livre intitulé L'École de Brive, son histoire, ses acteurs, où se faisait entendre la voix de huit écrivains qui constituent cette équipe désormais fameuse : Michel Peyramaure, Claude Michelet, Denis Tillinac, Gilbert Bordes, Yves Viollier, Jean-Guy Soumy, Colette Laussac, Martine Marie Muller. Ils disaient leurs origines et leurs sources, leur attachement à un passé toujours vivant qui ne cesse d'irriguer un présent incertain. Ils disaient le bonheur d'écrire et de publier au sein d'un groupe qu'animent seules la confiance et l'amitié. Cette année, pour que se manifeste une nouvelle fois cet esprit, pour les voir de nouveau réunis, nous leur avons demandé de raconter leurs rentrées des classes. En toute liberté. Et cela fait des histoires étonnantes, réelles ou plus ou moins imaginaires, où chacun se dévoile. Les cancre et les bons élèves, les fortes têtes, les fantaisistes et ceux qui, devenus professeurs, portent un regard stupéfait sur les enfants qu'ils furent. Ils sont tous là, tous les huit, six garçons et deux filles. La traditionnelle photographie de classe sous le préau s'anime. Ils ont l'air malin, ces gamins. Si les petits cochons ne les mangent pas..., on en fera peut-être quelque chose... Des écrivains et, pour nous tous, des amis.

Despite a number of broad surveys of contemporary French fiction that have appeared in the last decade or so, the question of the nouveau roman's literary legacy remains an under-researched field. Thresholds of Meaning offers evidence not only of a reworking of certain traditional themes, but also of a reinstatement of meaning at the center of literary inquiry. Drawing on the fields of sociology, anthropology, and psychology, Jean Duffy argues that this preoccupation with meaning concerns not only the processes of its production within a work, but also the processes by which it is produced in the real world, including the various linguistic and gestural codes by which a community communicates, the customs a community assumes, and the rituals that it observes.

Nations and their Histories highlights the importance of the past and its uses in the formation of modern nations and national identities. The book looks at the construction of different national historiographies as well as present representations of the past in the political and cultural life of nations, covering the five continents.

L'École de Brive

At the close of the twentieth century, even as globalization spurred the growth of megacities worldwide, inhabiting the French countryside had become an internationally-shared fantasy and practice. Accounts of moving into old farmhouses were bestsellers, and houses and barns built by peasants had been renovated as second homes throughout the rural hinterland. Such developments, Sarah Farmer argues, did not simply stem from nostalgia for a rural past or a desire to invest in real estate. Rather, they defined new versions of the rural that emerge in post-agrarian societies. In post-World War II France, cutting-edge technological modernization and explosive economic growth uprooted rural populations and eroded the village traditions of a largely peasant nation. And yet, this book argues, rural France did not vanish in the sweeping transformations of the 1950s and 1960s. The French responded to the collapse of peasant society and threats to cherished landscapes by devising new ways of inhabiting the countryside, making them the sites of change and adaptation. In addition to the rise of restored peasant houses as second residences, Rural Inventions explores the utopian experiments in rural communes and in "going back to the land"; environmentalism; the extraordinary success of peasant autobiographies; photography; and other representations through which the French revalorized rural life and landscapes. The peasantry as a social class may have died out, but the countryside persisted, valued as a site not only for agriculture but increasingly for sport and leisure, tourism, social and political engagement, and a natural environment worth protecting. The postwar French state and the nation's rural and urban inhabitants, Sarah Farmer eloquently shows, remade the French countryside in relation to the city and to the world at large, not only invoking traditional France but also creating a vibrant and evolving part of the France yet to come.

Nations and their Histories

Lithic Materials and Paleolithic Societies provides a detailed examination of the Paleolithic procurement and utilization of the most durable material in the worldwide archaeological record. The volume addresses sites ranging in age from some of the earliest hominin occupations in eastern and southern Africa to late Pleistocene and post-Pleistocene occupations in North American and Australia. The Early Paleolithic in India and the Near East, the Middle Paleolithic in Europe, and the Late Paleolithic in Europe and eastern Asia are also considered. The authors include established researchers who provide important synthetic statements updated with new information. Recent data are reported, often by younger scholars who are becoming respected members of the international research community. The authors represent research traditions from nine countries and therefore provide insight into the scholarly present as well as the Paleolithic past. Attempts are frequently made to relate lithic procurement and utilization to the organization of societies and even broader concerns of hominin behaviour. The volume re-evaluates existing interpretations in some instances by updating previous work of the authors and offers provocative new interpretations that at times call into question some basic assumptions of the Paleolithic. This book will be invaluable reading for advanced students and researchers in the fields of palaeolithic archaeology, geoarchaeology, and anthropology.
