Alfonso Archi ha mosso i primi passi nel mondo del Vicino Oriente antico presso l'Università di Firenze grazie agli insegnamenti di Giovanni Pugliese Carratelli, docente di Storia greca e dell'Asia anteriore antica. Dopo la laurea in Lettere Antiche ha perfezionato i suoi studi nei più grandi centri dell'orientalistica tedesca: Marburg-Lahn, alla scuola di Heinrich Otten, Münster, presso Wolfram von Soden, Monaco di Baviera, collaborando con Annelies Kammenhuber. Agli inizi degli anni Settanta dello scorso secolo è presso il Vorderasiatisches Museum di Berlino dove si dedica all'edizione testi ittiti di Boğazköy, che pubblica nella prestigiosa serie Keilschrifturkunden aus Boğazköy (KUB 49, KUB 50, KUB 52 e KUB 57). Nel 1977 diviene epigrafista della missione archeologica italiana a Ebla in Siria. Dapprima ricercatore presso l'Istituto per gli Studi Micenei ed Egeo-Anatolici (CNR), ha poi ricoperto il ruolo di professore di Ittologia presso Sapienza - Università di Roma, carica che ha mantenuto fino al 2011, anno del suo ritiro dall'attività istituzionale e dalla docenza. I principali campi di ricerca di A. Archi sono senza dubbio la religione, in tutte le sue molteplici sfaccettature, la storia, i vari aspetti culturali e sociali della civiltà ittita. Ha insegnato come Visiting Professor all'Università di Aleppo, al Wolfson College di Oxford, all'École Pratique des Hautes Études, IVème section di Parigi e al Collège de France. È membro del comitato editoriale di alcune fra le più note riviste del settore ed è tra i fondatori della serie "Studia Asiana", è inoltre membro onorario della American Oriental Society e membro della International Association for Assiriology.

Autour du clocher, l'accès à la mairie passe le plus souvent sous le porche : - le clocher : centre du village et symbole d'une collectivité qui continue à se vouloir unie, - la mairie : lieu du pouvoir local, maillon important de l'organisation de l'État et enjeux décisif de l'engagement politique des ruraux en particulier quand se mettent en place les institutions communales, - le porche : élément architectural distinctif des grosses censes qui jalonnent le paysage artésien. À la fin du XVIIIe siècle, dans ces censes souvent seigneuriales, vivent et travaillent les fermiers qui emploient des dizaines de personnes. Forts de leur "savoir lire et écrire", les fermiers, lieutenants de village, monopolisent le pouvoir local à la fin de l'Ancien Régime. Loin d'être balayés par les premières élections révolutionnaires, ils sont consacrés par les votes villageois comme maires et membres des municipalités... Au-delà de ruptures révolutionnaires et malgré des moments d'éviction ils s'installent pour longtemps dans la continuité du pouvoir. En révisant au passage quelques idées reçues (domination des propriétaires, passivité politique et "naturel" conservatisme paysans...), ce livre reconstitue les mécanisme qui lient la foule des villageois à la "fermocratie"; l'attribution des places dans l'église, le parrainage des enfants croisent le chantage au travail et la guillotine. À quelques mois du bicentenaire de 1789, la Révolution Française et les racines rurales demeurent des points de passage utiles pour comprendre la France d'Aujourd'hui.

Long repressed following the collapse of empire, memories of the French colonial experience have recently gained unprecedented visibility. In popular culture, scholarly research, personal memoirs, public commemorations, and new ethnicities associated with the settlement of postcolonial immigrant minorities, the legacy of colonialism is now more apparent in France than at any time in the past. How is this upsurge of interest in the colonial past to be explained? Does the commemoration of empire necessarily imply glorification or condemnation? To what extent have previously marginalized voices succeeded in making themselves heard in new narratives of empire? While veils of secrecy have been lifted, what taboos still remain and why? These are among the questions addressed by an international team of leading researchers in this interdisciplinary volume, which will interest scholars in a wide range of disciplines including French studies, history, literature, cultural studies, and anthropology.

On 15 March 1977, with his wife's consent, celebrated writer and former terrorist Hubert Aquin blew his brains out on the grounds of a Montreal convent school. Shocked by this self-murder, a filmmaker friend feels compelled to understand why Aquin killed himself - and discovers, at the heart of the tragedy, an unforgettable love story. A "documentary fiction" - a category which includes In Cold Blood and The Executioner's Song - HA! is a seminal work that reinvents the audiovisual revolution of the last century. Interweaving photographs, documents, and images with testimony from Aquin's friends and contemporaries, Aquin himself, and the writers and artists who influenced him, this intriguing novel takes the reader on a Joycean tour of a metropolis in the midst of political and cultural turmoil.

In the field of philosophy, Plato's view of rhetoric as a potentially treacherous craft has long overshadowed Aristotle's view, which focuses on rhetoric as an independent discipline that relates in complex ways to dialectic and logic and to ethics and moral psychology. This volume, composed of essays by internationally renowned philosophers and classicists, provides the first extensive examination of Aristotle's Rhetoric and its subject matter in many years. One aim is to locate both Aristotle's treatise and its subject within the more general context of his philosophical treatment of other disciplines, including moral and political theory as well as poetics. The contributors also seek to illuminate the structure of Aristotle's own conception of rhetoric as presented in his treatise. The first section of the book, which deals with the arguments of rhetoric, contains essays by M. F. Burnyeat and Jacques Brunschwig. A section treating the status of the art of rhetoric features pieces by Eckart Schütrumpf, Jürgen Sprute, M. M. McCabe, and Glenn W. Most. Essays by John M. Cooper, Stephen Halliwell, and Jean-Louis Labarrière address topics related to rhetoric, ethics, and politics. The final section, on rhetoric and literary art, comprises essays by Alexander Nehamas and André Laks. Originally published in 1994. The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print-on-demand technology to again make available previously out-of-print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press. These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions. The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905.
