Studies on the Crusader States and on Venetian Expansion Routledge

Trade, shipping, military conquest, migration and settlement in the eastern Mediterranean of the 10th-15th centuries generated multiple encounters between states, social and 'national' groups, and individuals belonging to Latin Christianity, Byzantium and the Islamic world. The nature of these encounters varied widely, depending on whether they were the result of cooperation, rivalry or clashes between states, the outcome of Latin conquest, which altered the social and legal status of indigenous subjects, or the result of economic activity. They had wide-ranging social and economic repercussions, and shaped both individual and collective perceptions and attitudes. These often differed, depending upon 'nationality', standing within the dominant or subject social strata, or purely economic considerations. In any event, at the individual level common economic interests transcended collective 'national' and cultural boundaries, except in times of crisis. The studies in this latest collection by David Jacoby explore the multiple facets of these eastern Mediterranean encounters and their impact upon individual economic activities, with special attention to the 'other', outsiders in foreign environments, foreign privileged versus indigenous traders, the link between governmental intervention, 'naturalization', and fiscal status, as well as the interaction between markets and peasants.

The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffiques, and Discoveries of the English Nation Legare Street Press

This volume examines the construction of Turkey's possible European Union accession in French political discourse. In today's France, heated debates regarding Turkey's EU membership are turning into an essential part of European identity formation. Once again, the 'Turkish Other' functions as a mirror for defining not only the 'European Self', but also European values. By providing a genuine and multi-disciplinary approach for studying the Otherness attributed to Turkey, this book contributes to our understanding of the Self/Other nexus in International Relations. Within a Critical Discourse Analysis framework, this study explores the socio-historical basis of the construction of Turkey's Otherness in an attempt to identify the processes through which past memories, representations, images and fantasies regarding Turkey are inserted into the French social imaginary. Focusing on these significations, which are (re)produced and become manifest through language, this book strives to uncover the link between discourse and political action.

Papers presented at the Tenth International Conference on Patristic Studies held in Oxford 1987 (see also Studia Patristica 20, 21, 22 and 23). The successive sets of Studia Patristica contain papers delivered at the International Conferences on Patristic Studies, which meet for a week once every four years in Oxford; they are held under the aegis of the Theology Faculty of the University. Members of these conferences come from all over the world and most offer papers. These range over the whole field, both East and West, from the second century to a section on the Nachleben of the Fathers. The majority are short papers dealing with some small and manageable point; they raise and sometimes resolve questions about the authenticity of documents, dates of events, and such like, and some unveil new texts. The smaller number of longer papers put such matters into context and indicate wider trends. The whole reflects the state of Patristic scholarship and demonstrates the vigour and popularity of the subject.

Nineteenth Century BRILL

An 1453. Depuis plus de mille ans, les imposantes murailles de Constantinople ont protégé la capitale de l'Empire romain d'Orient, le plus éloigné avant-poste du christianisme. Mais désormais, des colonnes interminables de soldats turcs recouvrent la plaine devant elles, leurs imposants canons braqués vers les remparts. C'est la force la plus redoutable que le monde a jamais vue. Aucune armée européenne ne viendra : les derniers croisés ont été mis en pièces par les Turcs sur les plaines du Kosovo. Constantinople ne peut compter que sur elle. Et la trahison est dans l'air. Trois personnes vont se battre pour le destin d'un empire : le jeune sultan turc, Mehmed, rentré d'exil et prêt à tout pour prouver sa grandeur, une princesse byzantine obstinée, qui a juré de protéger sa ville, et un mercenaire endurci, Giovanni Longo, qui a des comptes à régler. Mais c'est le soldat qui va faire face au plus difficile des choix : alors qu'il se prépare à ce qu'il pense être sa dernière bataille, il fait une découverte qui va lui donner une raison de vivre.

The Nineteenth century and after (London)

Collection of the Early Voyages, Travels, and Discoveries, of the English Nation BRILL

From its foundation, the city of Constantinople dominated the Byzantine world. It was the seat of the emperor, the centre of government and church, the focus of commerce and culture, by far the greatest urban centre; its needs in terms of supplies and defense imposed their own logic on the development of the empire. Byzantine Constantinople has traditionally been treated in terms of the walled city and its immediate suburbs. In this volume, containing 25 papers delivered at the 27th Spring Symposium of Byzantine Studies held at Oxford in 1993, the perspective has been enlarged to encompass a wider geographical setting, that of the city's European and Asiatic hinterland. Within this framework a variety of interconnected topics have been addressed, ranging from the bare necessities of life and defence to manufacture and export, communications between the capital and its hinterland, culture and artistic manifestations and the role of the sacred.

La traduction du corpus est donnée en annexe.  The book uses the eulogies of Gregory Nazianzen and John Chrysostom to trace the evolution of the cult of the maccabean martyrs through Christianity from the origins to the IVth century and demonstrates the central part of 4M in this process. The Principal Navigations, Voyages, Traffiques and Discoveries...

This collection of essays is the first published contribution from the ATLANTYS program, an interdisciplinary and intercultural research endeavour endorsed by the University of Nantes and the Centre François Viète, France, exploring epistemology, history of sciences and technology. This book sheds critical and analytical light on collective representations dealing with the end of the world. It considers various anthropological and historical issues, such as the interaction of human groups and populations with their natural environment and their reaction when faced with high-scale disasters; the expression and representation of the anxiety of our collective death or destruction; the reaction and behavior of human societies regarding the universal fear of their end; and the converging points between irrational beliefs, religious conceptions and scientific theories.
