South Asia is home to a large number of languages and dialects. Although linguists working on this region have made significant contributions to our understanding of language, society, and language in society on a global scale, there is as yet no recognized international forum for the exchange of ideas amongst linguists working on South Asia. The Annual Review of South Asian Languages and Linguistics is designed to be just that forum. It brings together empirical and theoretical research and serves as a testing ground for the articulation of new ideas and approaches which may be grounded in a study of South Asian languages but which have universal applicability. Each volume will have four major sections: I. Invited contributions consisting of state-of-the-art essays on research in South Asian languages. II. Refereed open submissions focusing on relevant issues and providing various viewpoints. III. Reports from around the world, book reviews and abstracts of doctoral theses.

The Grammar Book Learning Express (NY)

This book contains some sample lesson plans to teach grammar based on the three approaches of grammar teaching suggested by Thornbury in his book How to teach grammar (1999). Since teaching English grammar is one of the skills that needs to be mastered by not only English teachers but also by the future English teachers (student-teachers), they need to be equipped with the skill of grammar teaching. The sample lesson plans written in this book were developed by focusing on the three different approaches suggested by Thornbury (i.e., either by teaching grammar from rules, from examples, or through texts). Hopefully, the sample lesson plans in this book can give some practical ideas to teachers or student-teachers to teach several English grammatical structures or to teach other grammatical structures using the steps shown in the sample lesson plans. The Structure of Modern English McGraw Hill Professional Teaching English as a Second Language, in far too many American schools, thrusts, especially new teachers to the craft, into a learning environment where there are many expected learning outcomes and few real classroom tools to achieve them.
