TRUJILLO KEIRA

Dinosaur Bones Candlewick Press

A humourous look at life. This book proves that I do have a sense of English humour. I don't write all darkness.

Funny Bones iUniverse

An illustrated collection of short poems about witches, werewolves, broomsticks, and other signs of Halloween.

If the sky fell down... Turtleback

Thirty poems about parenthood, politics and the funny old world by Elaine Whybro, in recognition of her repeated prize winning on the monthly canyouwrite.com site (which is currently not available.)

Bones and Jokes Copper Canyon Press

A delightful collection of highly irreverent but wonderfully funny poems. For example: The reason skeletons don't wear clothes?/Socks won't stay on bony toes, /And underwear just sags and slumps/When hanging from their bony rumps./Shirts slide off their bony backs, And pants drop like potato sacks; / and since they can't wear fancy stuff, / Skeletons walk 'round in the buff. Edgy artwork, high kid-appeal topics, and a Halloween connection if we choose to use it, make for a winning combination.

Beautiful False Things Instructor Books

From celebrated New Zealand poetess F.D. Soul comes her highly anticipated second collection of poetry, prose, illustrations, and wisdom. Her messages grapple with relationships: interpersonal relationships, her relationship with herself, and the relationship between poetry and the world. Unchaptered and raw, Between You and These Bones reads much like a memoir or meditation yet maintains all the musicality of poetry. "This book is a garden, a hymn, a forgiveness. A falling back in love. It is all the pieces of light you forgot you held, remembered."

The Dream Songs FriesenPress

Rosemary Marshall Staples is a New England Poet and songwriter who grew up on the seacoast and has seawater and sunshine in her blood. Humor finds itself into much of her writing, creating smiles and laughs wherever she shares her work. Rosey's poems have appeared in the Seacoast Newspaper's Spotlight, Piscataqua Poems, Avocet Nature Poetry Journal, The Poets' Touchstone and on Fox's Maine restaurant placemat near Nubble Lighthouse. A regular attendee of open mics, Staples has featured, sung and read her creations at First Friday Coffee House, The Poetry Hoot, Serenity Poets, the Poetry Society of New Hampshire and Writers in the Round at Star Island. Rosey's light-hearted poems will tickle your funny bone!

Skeleton Bones and Goblin Groans Parlor Press LLC

The poems in this debut collection have been written over many years and introduce a bold new voice to take note of. In language both lyric and evocative, Sheila Burke celebrates and confronts events we all recognize, paying special attention to those issues women have struggled with in the tumultuous 20th Century. She extols motherhood and experiments with the new roles of women. She examines mental illness and the disintegration of a marriage. Influenced by Robert Lowell's ground-breaking workshop at Harvard during the late 1950s, she embraces the confessional style made famous by participants, Sylvia Plath and Anne Sexton. She doesn't spare herself or her readers in verse that chronicles her sorrows as well as her joys. Her poems can make you laugh or cry and are not easily forgotten.

Bone Poems Independently Published

This little book of whimsical verse really does tickle the funny bone. A very fat snake stuck in the drain, or a telltale fart - just about any humorous or off-the-wall reality might be Nathan's subject, in styles ranging from Edgar Allen Poe to vintage Dr. Seuss to... pure Nathan Laxague.

Good Bones Millbrook Press

Young readers can tickle their funny bones with skeletons, monsters, and a whole slew of silly characters with these fun poems. Black-and-white illustrations set the tone for this kooky celebration of all things spooky.

The Color of Mesabi Bones AuthorHouse

Featuring "Good Bones"—called "Official Poem of 2016" by the BBC/Public Radio International. Maggie Smith writes out of the experience of motherhood, inspired by watching her own children read the world like a book they've just opened, knowing nothing of the characters or plot. These are poems that stare down darkness while cultivating and sustaining possibility, poems that have a sense of moral gravitas, personal urgency, and the ability to address a larger world. Maggie Smith's previous books are The Well Speaks of Its Own Poison (Tupelo, 2015), Lamp of the Body (Red Hen, 2005), and three prize-winning chapbooks: Disasterology (Dream Horse, 2016), The List of Dangers (Kent State, 2010), and Nesting Dolls (Pudding House, 2005). Her poem "Good Bones" has gone viral—tweeted and translated across the world, featured on the TV drama Madam Secretary, and called the "Official Poem of 2016" by the BBC/Public Radio International, earning news coverage in the New York Times, Washington Post, Slate, the Guardian, and beyond. Maggie Smith was named the 2016 Ohio Poet of the Year. "Smith's voice is clear and unmistakable as she unravels the universe, pulls at a loose thread and lets the whole thing tumble around us, sometimes beautiful, sometimes achingly hard. Truthful, tender, and unafraid of the dark...."—Ada Limón "As if lost in the soft, bewitching world of fairy tale, Maggie Smith conceives and brings forth this metaphysical Baedeker, a guidebook for mother and child to lead each other into a hopeful present. Smith's poems affirm the virtues of humanity: compassion, empathy, and the ability to comfort one another when darkness falls. 'There is a light,' she tells us, 'and the light is good.'"—D. A. Powell "Good Bones is an extraordinary book. Maggie Smith demonstrates what happens when an abundance of heart and intelligence meets the hands of a master craftsman, reminding us again that the world, for a true poet, is blessedly inexhaustible."—Erin Belieu

Bones and Distances Prentice Hall

A collection of short poems for remembering when you have loved and recalling when you have struggled. But, most of all, assuring that you won't make it too far without a belly that hurts from laughing. A must have for coffee tables and powder rooms the world over!

treats. Spooky-fun poems and winning hand-beaded illustrations perfectly capture the fun of this much-loved holiday.

Digging Up The Bones Abrams

John Caddy is a native of the Mesabi Range, a string of iron-ore mining towns in Minnesota. He uses poetry to express his bittersweet feelings for people and the harsh reality of place.

The Blood-Hungry Spleen and Other Poems about Our Parts Lulu.com

The Dream Songs is widely seen as Berryman's masterpiece, an impressively vast and varied collection of poems that is in itself a single, sprawling, ever-shifting poem. The songs in this great work are thus offered in many different tones, moods, and guises, although their form, Berryman's idiosyncratic reworking of the sonnet, remains more or less constant. Combining all of Berryman's earlier 77 Dream Songs (which won the 1965 Pulitzer Prize) and His Toy, His Dream, His Rest (which won the 1969 National Book Award), this one-volume edition contains no fewer than 385 entries in what the critic Denis Donoghue has called Berryman's "dream diary." The book also has an index of first lines, an index of titles, and a note by the author.
