Fatou était enfant lorsque sa famille a été frappée par le génocide rwandais. Cachée dans un placard avec sa mère elle parvient à s'enfuir et à devenir une psychiatre renommée mais les fantômes du passé hantent encore ses nuits. Marie, infirmière, est la maîtresse de Jacques. Le poids du secret de cette relation la ronge peu à peu jusqu'à la tuer à petit feu. D'instant de bonheurs furtifs en douleurs psychologiques ineffaçables, elle tente par tous les moyens d'échapper à un amour malsain et destructeur. Fran est rédactrice en chef d'un magazine féminin, un tout nouveau statut qui lui confère satisfaction personnelle et notoriété. Chroniqueuse de talent, elle puise son inspiration dans la vie de tous les jours. Écriture thérapeutique qui lui permet aussi de se faufiler dans les méandres d'une vie personnelle pleine de rebondissements. Nina est l'épouse d'un avocat investi dans la défense de la cause des femmes maltraitées. Une belle maison, de beaux enfants, un beau couple. Mais tout n'est qu'ignoble apparence. Quatre femmes, quatre destins qui s'entrecroisent avec la même envie viscérale de briser ces barreaux invisibles qui les emprisonnent dans une existence dont elles attendent bien davantage.

Closely entwined with the educational revolution of early modernity, the Reformation transformed the pedagogical landscape and culture of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Embracing a broad understanding of the Reformation this volume examines the confessional dynamics which shaped the educational transformations of early modernity, including Calvinists, Lutherans, Anabaptists and Roman Catholics in its scope. Going beyond conventional emphases on the role of the printing press and theological education of clergy in university settings, it also explores the education of laity in academies, schools and the home in all manner of topics including theology, history, natural philosophy and ethics. More well-known figures like John Calvin and Philipp Melanchthon are examined alongside less-well known but important figures like Caspar Coolhaes and Lukas Osiander. Likewise, more prominent centres of reform including Switzerland, Germany and the Netherlands are considered together with often overlooked locations like the Czech Republic and Denmark.

Testimonios brings together first-person narratives from the vibrant, diverse, and complex Latinx and Hispanic mathematical community. Starting with childhood and family, the authors recount their own individual stories, highlighting their upbringing, education, and career paths. Their particular stories, told in their own voices, from their own perspectives, give visibility to some of the experiences of Latinx/Hispanic mathematicians. Testimonios seeks to inspire the next generation of Latinx and Hispanic mathematicians by featuring the stories of people like them, holding a mirror up to our own community. It also aims to provide a window for mathematicians (and aspiring mathematicians) from all ethnicities, with the hope of inspiring a better understanding of the diversity of the mathematical community.

What happens when an undocumented teen mother takes on the U.S. immigration system? When Aida

Hernandez was born in 1987 in Agua Prieta, Mexico, the nearby U.S. border was little more than a worn-down fence. Eight years later, Aida's mother took her and her siblings to live in Douglas, Arizona. By then, the border had become one of the most heavily policed sites in America. Undocumented, Aida fought to make her way. She learned English, watched Friends, and, after having a baby at sixteen, dreamed of teaching dance and moving with her son to New York City. But life had other plans. Following a misstep that led to her deportation, Aida found herself in a Mexican city marked by violence, in a country that was not hers. To get back to the United States and reunite with her son, she embarked on a harrowing journey. The daughter of a rebel hero from the mountains of Chihuahua, Aida has a genius for survival—but returning to the United States was just the beginning of her quest. Taking us into detention centers, immigration courts, and the inner lives of Aida and other daring characters, The Death and Life of Aida Hernandez reveals the human consequences of militarizing what was once a more forgiving border. With emotional force and narrative suspense, Aaron Bobrow-Strain brings us into the heart of a violently unequal America. He also shows us that the heroes of our current immigration wars are less likely to be perfect paragons of virtue than complex, flawed human beings who deserve justice and empathy all the same.

Despite remarkable economic advances in many societies during the latter half of the twentieth century, poverty remains a global issue of enduring concern.

Poverty is present in some form in every society in the world, and has serious implications for everything from health and well-being to identity and behavior. Nevertheless, the study of poverty has remained disconnected across disciplines. The Oxford Handbook of the Social Science of Poverty builds a common scholarly ground in the study of poverty by bringing together an international, inter-disciplinary group of scholars to provide their perspectives on the issue. Contributors engage in discussions about the leading theories and conceptual debates regarding poverty, the most salient topics in poverty research, and the far-reaching consequences of poverty on the individual and societal level. The volume incorporates many methodological perspectives, including survey research, ethnography, and mixed methods approaches, while the chapters extend beyond the United States to provide a truly global portrait of poverty. A thorough examination of contemporary poverty, this Handbook is a valuable tool for non-profit practitioners, policy makers, social workers, and students and scholars in the fields of public policy, sociology, political science, international development, anthropology, and economics.

Praying and Preying offers one of the rare anthropological monographs on the Christian experience of contemporary Amazonian indigenous peoples, based on an ethnographic study of the relationship between the Wari'õ, inhabitants of Brazilian Amazonia, and the Evangelical missionaries of the New Tribes Mission. Vila'õ turns to a vast range of historical, ethnographic and mythological material related to both the Wari'õ and missionaries perspectives and the author's own ethnographic field notes from her more than 30-year involvement with the Wari'õ community. Developing a close dialogue between the Melanesian literature, which informs much of the recent work in the Anthropology of Christianity, and the concepts and theories deriving from Amazonian ethnology, in particular the notions of openness to the other, unstable dualism, and perspectivism, the author provides a fine-grained analysis of the equivocations and paradoxes that underlie the translation processes performed by the different agents involved and their implications for the transformation of the native notion of personhood. Spécialiste de l'antisémitisme, Simon Epstein a constitué au fil des ans un socle informatif considérable sur les itinéraires contrastés de deux catégories de Français : ceux qui protestèrent contre le racisme et l'antisémitisme dans les années 1920 et 1930, avant de s'engager dans la Collaboration ; et ceux qui exprimèrent une hostilité ou un préjugé à l'égard des juifs, puis qui se retrouvèrent, l'heure venue, dans la Résistance. Ce livre ne retrace ni l'histoire de l'antiracisme ni celle de l'antisémitisme ; il est l'histoire du passage de l'un à l'autre. Les principaux chefs de la Collaboration ont traversé, chacun à sa manière, une phase de dénonciation de la haine antijuive ; beaucoup furent même militants de la Ligue internationale contre l'antisémitisme (LICA). Réciproquement, de nombreux résistants, et non des moindres, sont originaires d'une extrême droite nationaliste qui, dans les années 1930, fut fertile en prises de positions hostiles aux juifs. C'est ce phénomène paradoxal que Simon Epstein décrit puis analyse, en s'appliquant aussi à démonter l'occultation dont ces chassés-croisés, déroutants certes mais significatifs, ont fait l'objet dans les mémoires françaises.

Rapidly rising carbon emissions from the intense development of Western Canada's fossil fuels continue to aggravate the global climate emergency and destabilize democratic structures. The urgency of the situation demands not only scholarly understanding, but effective action. Regime of Obstruction aims to make visible the complex connections between corporate power and the extraction and use of carbon energy. Edited by William Carroll, this rigorous collection presents research findings from the first three years of the seven-year, SSHRC-funded partnership, the Corporate Mapping Project. Anchored in sociological and political theory, this comprehensive volume provides hard data and empirical research that traces the power and influence of the fossil fuel industry through economics, politics, media, and higher education. Contributors demonstrate how corporations secure popular consent, and coopt, disorganize, or marginalize dissenting perspectives to position the fossil fuel industry as a national public good. They also investigate the difficult position of Indigenous communities who, while suffering the worst environmental and health impacts from carbon extraction, must fight for their land or participate in fossil capitalism to secure income and jobs. The volume concludes with a look at emergent forms of activism and resistance, spurred by the fact that a just energy transition is still feasible. This book provides essential context to the climate crisis and will transform discussions of energy democracy. For fans of Wilder Girls comes a nightmarish debut guaranteed to keep you up through the night, about an idyllic small town poisoned by its past, and one girl who must fight the strange disease that's slowly claiming everyone she loves. Wren owes everything she has to her hometown, Hollow's End, a centuries-old, picture-perfect slice of America. Tourists travel miles to marvel at its miracle crops, including the shimmering, iridescent wheat of Wren's family's farm. At least, they did. Until five months ago. That's when the Quicksilver blight first surfaced, poisoning the farms of Hollow's End one by one. It began by consuming the crops, thick silver sludge bleeding from the earth. Next were the animals. Infected livestock and wild creatures staggered off into the woods by day—only to return at night, their eyes fogged white, leering from the trees. Then the blight came for the neighbors.

Wren is among the last locals standing, and the blight has finally come for her, too. Now the only one she can turn to is her ex, Derek, the last person she wants to call. They haven't spoken in months, but Wren and Derek still have one thing in common: Hollow's End means everything to them. Only, there's much they don't know about their hometown and its celebrated miracle crops. And they're about to discover that miracles aren't free. Their ancestors have an awful lot to pay for, and Wren and Derek are the only ones left to settle old debts.

 Immergez-vous dans un voyage poignant à la rencontre des chrétiens d'Orient à travers l'Irak, la Syrie, le Liban et l'Egypte ! Au début du 20e siècle, un habitant du Moyen-Orient sur quatre était chrétien. Aujourd'hui, ils ne sont plus que 11 millions parmi 320 millions de musulmans, et l'hémorragie continue. Alertés par les conditions de vie de plus en plus déplorables des communautés chrétiennes du Proche-Orient, plusieurs experts et photographes de renom se sont rendus en Irak, en Syrie, au Liban et en Egypte sur les traces de ceux qu'on appelle communément les "Chrétiens d'Orient". De ces voyages, ils ramèneront des témoignages poignants, des notes explicatives, des analyses politiques, des photographies époustouflantes, comme autant de chroniques amoureuses réunies dans un magnifique ouvrage sous la forme d'un dictionnaire subjectif et assumé. Plongez dans ces chroniques littéraires et photographiques aux témoignages touchants et aux images épatantes, rehaussé de ce qu'il faut d'analyse politique. EXTRAIT Ce livre a été conçu comme une mosaïque, à l'image de la diversité des chrétiens en Orient. Des boîtes de nuit de Beyrouth aux premiers rangs des églises coptes orthodoxes d'Al-Minya, de la vieille diaspora arménienne aux camps de réfugiés en passant par les zones de guerre syriennes et la fragile reconstruction irakienne de la plaine de Ninive, nous avons essayé d'offrir un aperçu de l'hétérogénéité des vécus. N'y cherchez pas une raison scientifique ou un sens cabalistique, il n'y en a pas ! Cet ouvrage s'est fait avec beaucoup d'enthousiasme et un peu de hasard : nous y avons réuni des experts et des passionnés, des Occidentaux et des Orientaux et d'autres qui ne savent plus ce qu'ils sont, des gens de foi et des gens de goût, des personnes en colère et des optimistes, mais surtout des amis. Nous avons essayé de traiter toutes les questions que les Occidentaux peuvent se poser sur les chrétiens d'Orient, en sachant déjà que nous n'y arriverions pas. CE QU'EN PENSE LA CRITIQUE Une aventure d'une audace inimaginable, autant dire une folie ! Aucun esprit raisonnable n'aurait pu concevoir un tel projet. Mais voilà, Vincent Gelot l'a fait et son expérience est bouleversante. Cet ouvrage est très agréable à lire et d'un accès facile. Je recommande chaudement sa lecture. Ce peut être aussi un beau cadeau à faire ou à se faire. - Alain Huger, La Procure À PROPOS DE L'AUTEUR Editrice, officière de réserve, Marie Thibaut de Maisières est aussi chroniqueuse sur BelRTL et dans le quotidien La Libre Belgique.  Since the 1970s, the landscape of higher education and research has been considerably altered by the integration of the arts within the university environment. Even though a form of research is inherent to artistic creation, the creative process is not comparable to the established procedures involved in academic research. As such, how can the imperatives of intellectual (and sometimes restrictive) rigour characteristic of scholarly endeavours be reconciled with the more explorative and intuitive approach of artistic creation? The concept of 'research-creation' allows artists and scholars to collaborate on a common project, acknowledging each participant's expertise in the production of an artistic work that either generates theoretical reflections or has emerged from academic research. This fully revised and updated translation of Sophie Stévançe and Serge Lacasse's original French book offers an overview of the historical, political, social, cultural and academic contexts within which research-creation has emerged in Quebec and Canada, before similar (yet often divergent) conceptions appeared elsewhere in the world. Focussing primarily on the case of music, the book goes on to explore the pedagogical potential of research-creation within a university-based environment and proposes a clear and encompassing definition, as well as a theoretical model, of research-creation supported by concrete examples. By underscoring the reciprocal nature of this approach and the potential benefits of collaborative relationships, the authors' vision of research-creation extends far beyond the field of music and art alone: rather, it has the potential to integrate all approaches and disciplines that seek to combine practice and research.

"It is a living museum of a long-gone Jewish life and, supposedly, a testimony to the success of the French model of social integration. It is a communal home where gay men and women are said to stand in defiance of the French model of social integration. It is a place of freedom and tolerance where people of color and lesbians nevertheless feel unwanted and where young Zionists from the suburbs gather every Sunday and sometimes harass Arabs. It is a hot topic in the press and on television. It is open to the world and open for business.

It is a place to be seen and a place of invisibility. It is like a home to me, a place where I feel both safe and out of place and where my father felt comfortable and alienated at the same time. It is a place of nostalgia, innovation, shame, pride, and anxiety, where the local and the global intersect for better and for worse. And for better and for worse, it is a French neighborhood."—from My Father and I Mixing personal memoir, urban studies, cultural history, and literary criticism, as well as a generous selection of photographs, My Father and I focuses on the Marais, the oldest surviving neighborhood of Paris. It also beautifully reveals the intricacies of the relationship between a Jewish father and a gay son, each claiming the same neighborhood as his own. Beginning with the history of the Marais and its significance in the construction of a French national identity, David Caron proposes a rethinking of community and looks at how Jews, Chinese immigrants, and gays have made the Marais theirs. These communities embody, in their engagement of urban space, a daily challenge to the French concept of universal citizenship that denies them all political legitimacy. Caron moves from the strictly French context to more theoretical issues such as social and political archaism, immigration and diaspora, survival and haunting, the public/private divide, and group friendship as metaphor for unruly and dynamic forms of community, and founding disasters such as AIDS and the Holocaust. Caron also tells the story of his father, a Hungarian Jew and Holocaust survivor who immigrated to France and once called the Marais home.
