The pastoral counselor brings God's presence to the counseling session. The counselor radiates God's enormous unconditional love and forgiveness to the client. Clients come in because they are spiritually broken and prey to the allies of darkness—fear of abandonment from God and those they love, resentment, frustration, anxiety, and callousness. He is the prodigal son. Through empathy, compassion, and counseling skills, the pastoral counsel connects them to the God who runs to meet him with joy, throws his arms around him, kisses him, forgives him, and makes him psychologically and spiritually whole again by giving him the signet ring. The pastoral counselor's role is to facilitate this occurrence.

For decades, the use of vouchers has been widely debated. But often lost in the heat of debate is the fact that vouchers are just another tool in the government's tool chest, a restricted subsidy that falls somewhere between the extremes of cash and direct government provision of services. The instrument itself is not new—the 1944 GI Bill of Rights was a voucher, and vouchers for food, college aid, and housing have been in place for decades. Until now, however, the study of vouchers has been restricted to a few controversial applications. This volume, which grew out of a conference sponsored by the Brookings Institution, the Urban Institute, and the Committee for Economic Development, fills the gap, offering a framework for comparative analysis of specific policy issues related to vouchers. Its 16 essays address the economics, politics, and legal issues of voucher use and explore how vouchers are currently employed in the United States and abroad for education, child care, job training, housing, and health care. C. Eugene Steuerle is a senior fellow at the Urban Institute and has worked under four different U.S. presidents on a variety of reform issues in such areas as social security, budget, tax, and health policy. Robert D. Reischauer, a senior fellow in Economic Studies at the Brookings Institution, was director of the Congressional Budget Office from 1989 to 1995. George Peterson is a senior fellow at the Urban Institute; from 1976 to 1985 he directed the Institute's Public Finance Research Center. Van Doorn Ooms, senior vice president and director of research at the Committee for Economic Development, was formerly executive director for policy and chief economist of the Committee on the Budget, U.S. House of Representatives, 1989-1990, and was the Budget Committee's chief economist from 1981 to 1988.

Federally Qualified Health Center Look-Alike Guidelines and Application

For example, a family of four earning $2,090 per month will pay a monthly fee of $43, regardless of whether the provider charges $200 or $400 per child for caring for the family's children.⁷ THE CDE/DSS PROPOSED CHILD CARE FEE SCHEDULE The proposed fee schedule, in a departure from current practice, bases fees on provider charges and the number of children receiving subsidized child care. [...] At 35 percent of the SMI, a family's fee would be based on a sliding scale percentage of the cost of care, based on the number of children in care. [...] The percent of monthly costs charged to families reaches its upper limit for families earning 75 percent of the SMI ($2,821 for a family of three).⁸ Such families -- at the upper range of eligibility for California's subsidized child care programs -- would pay 53.2 percent of the monthly cost -- capped at a maximum of $457 -- for one child in care.⁹ The maximum monthly cost for this family would be b. [...]

Correspondingly, their fees would rise until they reached 100 percent of the cost of care for one child, 67 percent of the cost for two, and 57 percent of costs for three - - subject to the maximum of $457 described in the text below. [...] In their report to the Legislature, the CDE and DSS suggest the lowest income families that would be subject to fees have incomes "at the national poverty level."¹¹ However, the 2000 federal poverty level is equivalent to 31 percent of the SMI used in the current fee schedule.¹⁰ Again, subject to the $457 maximum monthly charge.
